Once you own United Emirate Coins, they behave like physical gold coins: they possess value and can be traded like stocks in popular exchanges. In the future you'll be able to use them to purchase goods and services.

Bitcoin has proven that a peer-to-peer electronic cash system can indeed work and fulfill payments processing without requiring trust or a central mint. However, for an entire electronic economy to be based on a fully decentralized, peer-to-peer solution, it must be able to do the following:

- I. Process transactions securely, quickly and efficiently, at the rate of thousands per hour or more; provide incentives for people to participate in securing the network; scale globally with a minimal resource footprint;
- II. Offer a range of basic transaction types that launch Cryptocurrencies past the core feature of a payment system alone;
- III. Provide an agile architecture that facilitates the addition of new core features, and allows for the creation and deployment of advanced applications; and
- IV. To run on a broad range of devices, including mobile ones.

United Emirate Coin satisfies all these requirements.
